Dear Mr. President:

I appreciate your efforts regarding the possibility of using frozen Libyan assets to supplement the settlement amounts to US victims of terrorism sponsored by the Qaddafi regime. I hope that you will continue to work toward an effective solution given the constraints facing the US-Libya Claims Settlement Agreement. With a new government in Libya, we must work to create a free and democratic Libya while compensating those who were victims of former dictator Muammar Qaddafi's global terror campaign.

I ask that you work with the Israeli government and your counterparts in the international community to compensate other victims of terrorism sponsored by the Qaddafi regime that fell outside of the 2008 US-Libya Claims Settlement Agreement. The victims of the Munich massacre at the 1972 Summer Olympic Games included 11 members of the Israeli Olympic team, including American David Berger.

It is well established that the massacre was carried out by the group Black September and that it was supported by the Libyan government of Qaddafi. Unfortunately, during negotiations that led to the 2008 US-Libya Claims Settlement Agreement, Mr. Berger was not included. Those responsible for the murders remain unpunished. The families of the victims have received no compensation from the Qaddafi regime.

There is a national memorial to David Berger in Beachwood, Ohio. Mr. Berger was an American citizen and one of the 11 Israeli athletes killed at the 1972 Olympic Games. As a nation, we honor his memory and Israeli teammates, but we must compensate his family and hold those responsible for his death accountable.

Holding the Qaddafi regime accountable for its actions does not terminate with the end of the regime. Seeking justice and compensation for victims of global terrorism sends a powerful message to those who may be seeking to act similarly. The window of opportunity to engage the new Libyan government has never been greater. Yet, as we approach the 40th anniversary of the massacre, memories fade while justice remains denied.

I ask that you work with the governments of Libya and Israel to forge an agreement that will allow Libya to move forward in its quest to shake its dark past, while providing the families of the innocent Israeli and American victims of the Munich massacre the compensation and justice that has been so long denied.

Thank you for your attention to this important matter.

Sincerely,
