

Statement from National League of Cities President Mark Stodola

“America’s cities applaud Senators Brown, Whitehouse and Wyden for starting the new year off with a bill that would fix the nation’s worst bridges,” said National League of Cities (NLC) President Mark Stodola, mayor of Little Rock, Arkansas. “Every day, far too many families and freight go over deficient and poorly maintained bridges. The Bridge Investment Act would give direct support to cities so we can begin to work on our deficient and obsolete infrastructure.”
